About

Nowadays, cafes and coffee shops are more than just places you stop by for a quick brew – these stores are often pivotal parts of the community, providing somewhere people can go to work, relax and meet with friends

Getting your coffee shop overall design right is perhaps just as important as your menu itself. A well-executed interior and inviting ambience will ensure you can attract more people, encourage them to stay and incentivise them to return to your store.

The walls are one of the most expressive elements of the whole design, it's the element that will be the most visible to your clients, so special attention should be given to them. There are multiple wall treatment options that you can use, depending on what aligns with your vision, such as murals, textures, faux finishes, or earthy feelings, which are all options to add a distinctive touch to your design.
